

Bois d' Arc Project Under Construction

Bois d' Arc Job May Be Done by Fall

Large-scale construction has been resumed on the Bois d' Arc Game Restoration Project west of Sikee Hill and it now seems likely it will be completed in time for the use of fishermen and duck hunters this fall.

A local committee visited the project this morning and found three bulldozers deepening the north end of the lake site, considerable depth having already been achieved at the southern end.

The $400,000 project represents a governmental rarity — something that hasn't cost the taxpayers a dime. The entire cost is financed by the Game & Fish Commission from licenses paid by fishermen and hunters.

The land cost $150,000, and the balance $250,000 construction cost includes $140,000 for dirt-moving and engineering.

Bois d' Arc reservation covers 6,000 acres, of which the lake will occupy 740 acres.

The lake is to be created by a levy 16 feet high with a 10-foot crown. Into this levy will go 200,000 cubic yards of dirt.

1,950 Persons, One in Ten, in Hempstead Get $1,087,352 a Year in Social Security

At the end of 1959, 18 Federal Social Security was starting its 25th year. Old Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance beneficiaries were being paid in Hempstead County to 1950 persons at the rate of $1,087,352 per year, according to Orla A. Blackwood, Manager of the Texas-Kansas Social Security District Office. "This is an increase in the number of beneficiaries of about 4% over the year before and an amazing 252% since 1932, which is the earliest year figures are available for Hempstead County," he said.

Nationally, about 13 1/2 million persons are receiving Old Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance monthly benefits at the end of 1959 at an annual rate of more than 10 billion dollars. At the close of 1940, the first year in which monthly benefits were payable — beneficiaries throughout the nation totaled 200,000. Almost half a million disabled workers beneficiaries receiving monthly benefits increased sharply in 1959. Such benefits were first payable for September 1950. Nationally from February to December 1959, the number of these beneficiaries more than doubled. In Hempstead County alone these beneficiaries increased from 8 to 21. Payments to a retired worker with no dependents receiving benefits averaged $89 a month nationally at the end of last December. To a retired couple, both of whom were receiving benefits, the average amount was $21. The average for a widow with two young children was $169. These averages were slightly lower in predominantly agricultural regions and slightly higher in highly industrialized areas. Hempstead County is therefore slightly under the national average in all categories. By contrast, Blackwood recalled that when benefits first became payable in 1940, the average monthly payment to a retired couple with no dependents was $36 and to a retired worker alone, the amount was only $22.

As social security celebrates its Silver Anniversary this year, the act was signed into law on August 14, 1935, about 74 million working people are in covered employment or self employment in the course of a year. They are building Old Age, Survivors, and Disability protection for themselves, their dependents, and their survivors under the social security law.

The table below shows the number and monthly amount of each type of benefit being paid in Hempstead county as of 12-31-59, the date of the latest tabulation:

Beneficiary Group	Number of Beneficiaries	Amount Monthly
Retired worker	1,019	$56,708
Disabled worker	41	3,357
Wife or husband of retired or disabled worker	390	10,755
Widow or widower	160	7,127
Dependent parent	10	521
Mother with child	54	2,715
Children of retired, disabled or deceased worker	276	9,336
"It is interesting to note,"

Blackwood said, "that one out of every ten persons in Hempstead County is receiving some type of social security benefit and that social security is playing a dynamic role in the economy of the county and its people."

Golden Age Group Holds a Picnic

The Golden Age Club of Hope held its bi-annual picnic and outing yesterday noon at Fair Park. About twenty five members and guests were present and enjoyed "pot luck and games."

Mrs. Paul Cobb, secretary of the group since its organization, was in charge of arrangements and acted as official host and organizer of the outing. Mrs. Cobb said that this was the most successful of the picnics held thus far.

Pres. Eugene Cox of the Golden Age Club said that Mrs. Leslie H. Pigot from Sikee Hill, Washington a guest of the club plans to return to her home and organize a Golden Age Club similar to the Hope group. Mrs. Vera Goff of Hope was a local guest.

Mrs. Cobb advised that the meeting schedule had been revised to the first Thursday of each month for September and October. The group has been meeting bi-annually.

Russia Wants Talks After U. S. Election

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev told Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain today he would like to discuss disarmament, a nuclear test ban and the future of Germany — "the basic problems of our times" — at a summit meeting.

But, he added, such a meeting "can hardly be expected" before the U. S. elections in November. Then he went on, Tass reported: "If the Soviet government does not meet with understanding later and if obstacles to agreement on these questions will be put up, we shall conclude a peace treaty with the (East) German Democratic Republic."

He accused Macmillan of taking a hostile stand toward Russia by backing what he termed the aggressive policies of the United States.

Arkansas Has Chance for Plant

ST. LOUIS (AP)—White-Rogers Corp. of St. Louis has signed a contract to buy tools and fixtures used in manufacturing sheet metal gas burners from the Robinson Tool Fabricating Co. of Conway, Ark.

White-Rogers plans to establish a gas-burner manufacturing plant which will employ 40 to 50 persons. John H. Pahlmann, White-Rogers secretary-treasurer, said yesterday the plant could be either in St. Louis or in Arkansas.

No decision has been made, he said.

White-Rogers, which makes controls for burners, plans to enter the gas burner manufacturing field in order to offer a more integrated line of products.

The purchase is contingent upon approval by Robinson stockholders.

4 Indicted at Camden in Vote Probe

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP)—A Ouachita County Grand Jury yesterday indicted four persons on charges of illegal voting and criticized alleged tax practices in issuing poll tax receipts and handling of absentee ballots.

Two of those indicted in connection with voting in the July 26 Democratic primary were served with warrants yesterday. They were W. C. (Pop) Henderson, business agent for Construction and General Laborers Local 788, and C. D. Biggers Jr., a service station operator. Sheriff Grover Linebarger said the other two persons were out of town. Their names were not released.

Bond was set at $1,000 each for Henderson and Biggers and a court appearance set for Aug. 29 by Circuit Judge Gus W. Jones.

The four were charged with voting and attempting to vote ballots other than their own and with other illegal absentee ballots.

The Grand Jury report said that from its investigation, which included hearing about 40 witnesses, "a clear picture is presented of a practice by individuals of illegal purchase of poll taxes for other people and highly improper and, in many instances, illegal, voting or influence in the voting of absentee ballots of others."

The jury recessed until Aug. 22. It asked that persons having knowledge of any voting irregularities appear at its next session.

Katanga Bars Advance Crew of UN Troops

BY ADRIAN PORTER

ELISABETHVILLE, (The Congo) (AP)—A 20-man advance guard to pay the way for U. N. soldiers was barred from entering Katanga today and sent back to Leopoldville with U. N. Undersecretary Ralph J. Bunche.

Bunche said the men were technicians and should be allowed to start work here. Katanga officials said they were U. N. soldiers and refused to allow them to get off their plane.

Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga, who has proclaimed the secession of his province from the new Congo republic, showed no intent business in refusing to allow the United Nations to patrol his territory under U. N. patrol. He has said U. N. forces would have to fight their way in.

Bunche, top troubleshooter in the Congo for Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, came here Thursday and failed to work out a compromise with Tshombe. Today Bunche went back to the Congo capital of Leopoldville to report to Hammarskjold.

The plane that came to pick him up was surrounded by Katanga police and soldiers as it stood on the airfield.

Godofroid Munongo, Katanga interior minister, went aboard and personally informed the U. N. delegation it would not be allowed to get out.

Tshombe told a news conference Thursday night he was under the impression U. N. troops would not begin arriving Saturday but conceded Bunche had given him no assurance. He added that he would not be surprised if the troops came.

Members of Premier Patrice Lumumba's central government were certain to oppose any attempt to take the question of Katanga to the Security Council. Katanga's mines, rich fields and pastures furnished 60 per cent of the wealth of the pre-independence Belgian Congo, and Lumumba and his ministers have made plain they consider part of the U. N. military force's mission is to enforce the central government's authority over Tshombe and his rebellious Katanga regime. Hammarskjold in a statement Wednesday said the U. N. force had not been sent to take orders from the Congo government, or mix in the infant nation's internal affairs.

Elisabethville's Europeans were anxious, but there were no signs of panic or preparations for a mass flight in fear the province might become a battleground.

But long lines of Africans 10 to 20 years old marched or cycled to an army barracks in answer to the provincial government's general mobilization order issued after Tshombe announced U. N. troops would have to fight their way in Saturday. They sang independence songs as they came to sign up.

Court Orders Houston to Integrate

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A U. S. District Court judge Thursday ruled against a Houston School Board plan to integrate only three of Houston's 173 schools.

Judge Ben G. Connally ordered the nation's largest segregated school system to start integration in the first grade next month.

His ruling puts the board members—who earlier voted 5-1 to ask Connally for a three-school plan—between federal and state rulings. He called the board's plan "a sham and a subterfuge."

If the board obeys Connally, the school district stands to lose six million dollars in state financial aid because a state statute forbids a school district to integrate without favorable approval from voters.

Houston district voters in May turned down integration by a 3-1 margin. The state law has never been officially challenged for constitutionality.

Connally's order said integration must start in the first grade when school opens Sept. 8 and increase a grade a year.

Girl Saves Baby From Snake Bite

CROSSETT, Ark. (AP)—Eight-year-old Benita Ballard saved her baby cousin from being bitten by a poisonous snake, but the copperhead struck her on the foot. She was hospitalized in serious condition.

Benita and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Ballard of Odesa, Tex., were visiting relatives when the incident occurred yesterday.

The girl was pushing her year-old cousin, Leonard Holloway, in a stroller near the home of her uncle, Charles Holloway.

She said the snake struck to-

Suspect Is Questioned by the FBI

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A Memphis man charged in an alleged bombing attempt here is being investigated in connection with distribution of unsigned political literature, an FBI report revealed yesterday.

The investigation came to light when the FBI filed in federal district court a list of articles seized in a July 23 search of the home of Emmett E. Miller at West Memphis.

Miller, 44; Robert Lloyd Parks, 38, of West Memphis, and Hugh Lynn Adams, 33, of Bassett are charged with interstate transportation of dynamite intended for bombing. The FBI said they plotted to blow up a building at Philander Smith College for Negroes here.

Apparently the political literature investigation was not related to the bomb charge. The FBI said the July 23 search was made at the request of Warner Hodges, U. S. Attorney at Memphis.

Miller's home and the business residence of Parks had been searched prior to that date.

Hodges said several other persons, some of them in Tennessee, were being investigated in connection with unsigned literature. Circulation of unsigned campaign material violates federal law.

The FBI report said printing equipment, photographic negatives and other materials, some of it relating to the Tennessee Democratic primary campaign between Sen. Estes Kefauver and Judge Andrew (Tip) Taylor, was found at Miller's house Kefauver won re-nomination by a wide margin.

Printed material relative to the Ku Klux Klan also was taken, the report showed. There also were stencils for Shelby County (Memphis) Citizens Council literature.

The search warrant reports also gave some details on the arrest of Miller and Parks, who were taken into custody at the college July 12.

Special Agent James Skelly wrote that he had observed Parks and Miller driving from West Memphis to Little Rock on the night of July 11 and that he witnessed their arrest shortly after midnight.

Special Agent Ed McFadden wrote that he arrested Miller and that Miller admitted possessing explosives from West Memphis to Little Rock for bombing purposes.

ward the stroller and she pushed it out of the way, thinking only of the child's safety.

"It wasn't anything," she told hospital attendants. "I just wanted to save him."

The snake struck again, this time sinking its fangs in Benita's left foot. Her screams brought her uncle on the run. He killed the copperhead and Benita was rushed to the hospital.

Her condition had improved today, but she remained on the serious list.

Kefauver Is Winner in Tennessee

By GAVIN SCOTT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver won a third term with a stunning landslide victory in Thursday's Tennessee Democratic primary, in which civil rights was the overriding issue.

The race, billed as the lightest of the lanky 57-year-old senator's career, turned into his greatest triumph as the state's voters made it unmistakably clear they preferred his liberal philosophy to that of Judge Andrew T. Taylor, a strong advocate of segregation and states rights.

Kefauver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1956, led from the outset and quickly grabbed a two-to-one margin which he maintained throughout the night.

With tabulations from 2381 of the state's 2635 precincts, the vote was:

Kefauver 433,087

Taylor 218,081

The outcome had been watched nationally for an indication of the depth of Southern reaction to the civil rights proposals adopted by the Democratic National Convention. Taylor sharply criticized this platform plank, while Kefauver said only that it was a little too far.

Kefauver, termed his victory an emphatic answer to "the detractors of the South" who tried to say that we are a backward people.

"The South will continue to move forward in the main stream of American civilization," he said.

Despite the decisive margin polled by Kefauver, Taylor went to bed without actually conceding defeat. The soft-spoken circuit judge from Jackson admitted only "there are two strikes on me."

In two weststate counties—Fayette and Haywood—Negroes voted in the primary for the first time since reconstruction days. There were no incidents, Negroes outnumbered whites in both counties.

Democratic nomination to the Senate means election in this Southern state. Two Republicans, little known across the state, sought the GOP nomination.

All nine of the state's congressmen were renominated, five of them without opposition.

Democrats James B. Frazier of Chattanooga, Carlton Loser of Nashville, Ross Bass of Pulaski and the Cliff Davis of Memphis had little trouble turning back their opponents.

Unopposed for renomination were Reps. Joe Evans, Tom Murray and Robert Everett, Democrats, and B. Carroll Reece and Howard Baker, Republicans.

Hearing on Vote Rights in Louisiana

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Rights Commission today ordered a hearing in Louisiana Sept. 27 and 28 on complaints by Negroes that they have been denied voting rights.

A spokesman said the complaints run into the dozens and involve at least 13 parishes.

He declined to name the parishes from which the complaints have been received saying that to do so would hamper the investigative work.

The commission originally scheduled a hearing into complaints from Louisiana for Shreveport July 13, 1959, but this was called off when a federal court enjoined the commission from proceeding with that action. A location for the hearing ordered today has not been chosen.

In the earlier case, the Louisiana attorney general, acting on behalf of a group of voting registrars, raised the constitutional question whether the commission had authority to set up rules of procedure which did not provide an opportunity for a person being investigated to confront the witnesses and conduct cross-examination.

The commission then suspended activities which might have involved public hearings pending a Supreme Court decision.

The Supreme Court on June 20 ruled that the commission had authority to set up the rules. The court also said the 1960 civil rights law contained provisions to clarify the commission's authority.

Employment Upswing Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Labor Department predicts a modest upswing in employment by mid-September, a trend normal for that time of the year.

After taking a national survey, the department said Tuesday the moderate increases would come principally in auto centers as work starts on 1961 cars and trucks.

Payrolls, up about half of major steel areas are expected to move up in line with renewed demand from the auto industry.

The first representatives assembly in America was Virginia's House of Burgesses, founded in 1619.

Weather Is Damaging State Crops

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The hot, dry weather has begun to damage some Arkansas crops, especially in the southern part of the state, agriculture experts say.

The weekly summary of the Crop Reporting Service said that considerable crop damage had resulted from lack of rain in extreme south Arkansas.

The report made no effort to set a monetary figure on the damage. Cotton, the state's principal money crop, generally thrives on heat, but dry soil has been adversely affecting soybeans, hays, late corn and pastures in south Arkansas, the report said.

Some farmers already have turned to irrigation and others will soon unless there is a rain. Apparently the situation is less serious in other parts of the state even though Arkansas hasn't had a heavy general rain in several weeks.

The Crop Reporting Service forecast a very good crop of rice, early corn and apples with prospects for early-maturing varieties of soybeans "fairly good."

"CHIROPRACTOR"

GOD GIVES LIFE

Within each human body God has given an expression of life force, that life force originates in the brain and travels to all organs and cells over the nerve pathway. This life is what sees with the eyes, hears with the ears, digests the foods, selects just the right vitamins and minerals to be used by that body and discards all others as waste.

As long as this life force flows freely and uninhibited to all parts our body works as an organization and in perfect harmony with our everyday life.

If at any time a vertebrae becomes slightly misaligned, causing pressure on the nerves, God's life given force cannot flow to give life and ease to the organs and tissues supplied by the pinched nerves. We then have dis-ease (away from ease).

Chiropractic is a science of locating and removing this cause of disease—regardless of what name has been applied to your particular condition and no matter how long this dis-ease has existed, find out today if you are a Chiropractic case.

Ill-Tempered Niece Problem for Bride

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen:

Ever since we've been children, I've promised my sister's daughter, who is my age, that she would be bridesmaid when I got married. This girl is thoughtless and insulting. When we meet, she doesn't even so much as look my way. Now that I'm to be married and the wedding close, she still doesn't speak. Should I still take her for bridesmaid? If not, how could I tell her in a way that won't hurt her or my sister's feelings? My sister is giving me an all-day reception at her home, so you can see the predicament I'm in.—A Faithful Reader

Dear Faithful Reader: Don't hurt your sister. Keep your promise and take the sour-puss niece as bridesmaid. Let the elopement of your wedding day so fill your heart that you will be impervious to her ill-temper.

To One Who Loves Both Parents: If you have the character to reform yourself, then you should stay and try to help your mother. She needs you. But—take note of that "if." Be certain you really are morally strong. What others say doesn't matter so long as you know in your heart you are doing what is right.

Dear Helen:

My boy friend and his mother have invited me to stay with them for a weekend at their home at the shore. Now, my parents feel that this is improper and refuse to allow me to go. I am a senior in college and my boy friend, to whom I am pinned, is going to graduate school in the South in the fall. Therefore this will be one of the last times I will see him until Christmas.

graduation from high school. He was a cadet and parading with the band. Mother not only gave her consent but bought the some pretty clothes for the occasion. It was my first trip away from home and I had a wonderful time. It is entirely proper for you to visit your boy friend and his mother. Ask your mother to accept for you, then everything will be as it should be.

Among other things you'll need are

TOWELS

Through the season we have accumulated a large group of odds and ends in towels. They are all first quality Fieldcrest and Cannon towels — no seconds or irregulars — and we have them in whites, light and dark solid shades and in patterns, but in this group of towels we couldn't match a bath towel, a guest towel, and a wash cloth for any amount of money, so we've marked them down to move them out. For school towels they're great.

Chapter XXXV

It seemed as if hours had passed, but no more than 10 minutes had elapsed since Artemus had entered the shack with Marvin Leeds.

"Spain," a voice called. "The name," answered Artemus, "is Baldwin."

"Can we make a deal?" Leeds asked. "No dicker," Artemus answered. "We'll get you — and the boy," Leeds called.

Artemus heard a car start down by the road. It drove furiously away. "Lost your army, Leeds?" he asked.

There would not have been many. The plot had not called for many. It had been such a perfect trap. Maybe the dead man on the floor and one other. Not more. And that other had deserted. Leeds would be desperate.

"Come out," Artemus commanded, "with your hands up. You're alone, Leeds. You're kaputt. By now the Beauregards are in custody. Your office has been taken over under a search warrant. Same goes for Bayside's house. Clean sweep, Leeds."

There was silence. Then Leeds spoke again, asking a question. "Who are you?"

"Artemus Baldwin, United States Secret Service." Leeds cursed. There was desperation in his voice. There is a difference between desperation and fear. The man knew he had come to the end of the road. He realized now that it was he who had been the dupe.

"I'm coming after you, Baldwin," he said.

He stepped into view and walked slowly toward the cabin. His hands hung at his sides.

From that day in his motel, when Leeds had performed his gun trick, Artemus had known subconsciously that it would come to a showdown between him and this man. It had become a personal thing, aside from all duty. Now the offer of a showdown had come.

It was a temptation to his manhood to accept the challenge. But Artemus Baldwin belonged to a service; he had been trained in its ideals, and in those ideals personal vanity had no part.

"Drop your gun," Artemus ordered, "and raise your hands."

Leeds' answer was to snap a shot at the doorway, at the sound of Artemus' voice. Artemus took careful aim and pulled the trigger. His object was to wound, not kill. Leeds halted; his body jerked, the gun dropped from his fingers. He staggered backward and sat down. The Secret Service man's bullet well aimed, had shattered his right shoulder.

Leeds could not repress a cry of agony.

Gun at the ready, Artemus strode to the sitting man. He kicked away Leeds' gun. The man slumped sideways and was unconscious.

Suddenly, belatedly, the road below was ablaze with light. Men led by Dutra came at a gallop.

"You cut it fine," he said. "You cut it just a little fine."

"I got no authority here," Dutra said. "It's county."

Pomfret Lionel was there, hunched, "It was when I was investigating why there was a collar that I got collared. I was shut up in it. It stinks. Chemicals and trays and tools and like that too."

"We'll look it over," Artemus said.

Mrs. Roche ran down the walk and flung herself upon her knees to clasp her son in her arms. "Aw, rats!" objected the boy, but she was staring in her eyes as she looked at Artemus. She cupped his cheeks in her slender hands, drew his head down and kissed him on the lips.

"Thank you, Mr. Baldwin," she said.

Jack and her father were standing there now. "Brat!" she said. "I ought to bust you one."

"You and who else?" Pomfret Lionel demanded. "Hello dad."

Mr. Roche extended his bony hand, which the boy took gratefully. "I thought you'd turn up," he said.

Jack had not spoken to or scarcely looked at Artemus. Now she nodded her head at him.

"Go along," she told him, and then, still sedately, which was not in character, "I have no important engagements tomorrow."

"On the contrary, Miss Jack," he said, "you have one very important appointment. I hope."

He drove to Bayside's home on

Bible Comment

By RALPH W. LOEWN

A college student complained to me the other day concerning his roommate. The one boy wanted to keep the room meticulously clean. The other fellow was content to leave it untidy.

Then, finally, "decided" to solve the problem by allowing the one boy to clean only his side of the room. It didn't work. Every time a breeze wafted through the window the dirt from the untidy side blew over on the clean side. This is the way it is with most of the cities neighborhoods. You can't just keep the dirt on one side or in one place. It has a genius for blowing around and infecting the entire city.

That's why churches, social agencies and aroused citizens are concerned that we understand that we can't hide from evil, or close our eyes to dirt. We live on a time when there is a completely new sense of the neighborhood.

Once upon a time a neighborhood was a closely knit community. Some of us grew up in the days when one shared food or courtesies with the people next door. It's still done in many thousands of American communities.

I remember the days when mother made vegetable soup. It was an operation which required several days and you just couldn't make a little soup. Even our family knew that there would be more than we could use.

So the pungent fragrance of that steaming soup always meant that we had to run down the street to this widow's home, or that neighbor's house with the little tri-cornered kettles from the fireless cooker.

These were the evidences of concern and practical neighborliness which are always difficult to translate into the larger blueprints of civic understanding and metropolitan planning.

"The truth of the matter is that goodness drifts over on to the other side of the room, too. Since new highways make it possible to move more easily from one area to another, we need new mental and spiritual highways to enable us to move as thoughtfully from one area to another.

I remember a good lady in Washington, D.C., who had lived in the nation's capital for 50 years but had seldom gotten beyond her own little neighborhood. The Capitol was foreign territory; the government centers of interest might attract visitors from afar but were out of bounds for her life, and as she would remark: "this is all out of my latitude."

"We smile at this. And do it every day. We live in our own neighborhoods. We work here, go to church, there, and visit relatives or friends over there. The hospital is out of bounds unless we are ill. Traffic problems are uninteresting until we are involved. The jail is unknown territory."

"We are willy-nilly becoming dwellers in a vast suburbia, with out citizens without a city. We are inter-related, without really becoming a community."

All of this emphasizes the importance of these institutions and ideas which leap across the hard-drawn lines and bind people together.

A few years ago traffic was stopped on a city's street by the appearance of an enormous turtle. Where it came from no one knew. Before it had been herded to the zoo, traffic had stopped, strangers had worked together to lift it into a car, conversations had developed between neighbors and several folks discovered that they knew each other.

If turtles traveled the streets every day, no one would have paid any attention. Families lose contact with all that is good in life, and children lose hold of the traditions which have blessed the generations simply because the traffic flows by too rapidly to notice.

It will do no good to wish nostalgically that we could have the pungent fragrance of that soup and long for the old neighborhood. That's gone. But the dust blows around, and civic situations remind us that we need to answer the old question:

"And who is my neighbor?" Jesus answered it with the How do we answer it?
